INTRODUCTION

The College of Dental Surgeons of British Columbia commissioned Pivotal Research Inc. to develop and administer a complaints process exit survey for complainants and registrants once their file has been closed. Feedback is received via two surveys: one for registrants and another for complainants (see Appendix A). Both surveys can be completed online at www.pivotalresearch.ca/cdsbc although complainants have the option to complete a paper survey and return it to Pivotal Research in a postage-paid business reply envelope.

To complete the online survey participants require a unique access code to log in. The access code differentiates the survey version viewed by participants (registrant or complainant), identifies the complaint outcome and the month their file was closed. All paper surveys provided to complainants also included an access code. Access codes are provided each month to College staff who then distributes them to complainants and registrants upon closure of a complaint file.

This annual report includes results from surveys distributed between March 2017 and February 2018. Surveys returned by March 31, 2018, are included in this report. Quarterly reports over the course of the previous 12 months were provided to the College at the end of each quarter.

Annual Participation

Overall, 16 complainants and 7 registrants completed the exit survey.

It is important to note that the overall number of completed surveys is small. As such, results are directional and statistical comparisons are not conducted.

Table 1 shows the number of responses based on the complaint outcome.

Table 1. Number of responses by complaint outcome

Complaint Outcome	Number of complainants	Number of registrants
Dismissal	7	4
Letter of Agreement (Undertaking without monitoring)	2	1
Memorandum of Agreement/Understanding (Undertaking with monitoring)	7	2
TOTAL	16	7

Complaint Resolution Options

CDSBC investigates all complaints related to the conduct or competence of its registrants:

- Dismissal refers to complaints that are closed with no action taken, or with some recommendations/best practice advice.
- Letter of Agreement (LOA) and Memorandum of Agreement/Understanding (MOU) both refer to complaints that are closed with the registrant signing an agreement (or "undertaking") to take certain steps to improve their practice. The difference is that MOU undertakings also require monitoring by the CDSBC.

More information about CDSBC's complaints process is available on the College's website.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

Following are general observations drawn from the results.

Complainant Survey

Complainants are equally split between those who agree and disagree with how the process is conducted in terms of fairness and thoroughness. Complainants are more likely to agree that their complaint was handled with courtesy and respect. Similar to last year, complainants are more likely to disagree that their complaint was handled in a timely manner.

Results show that those whose complaints are dismissed are more likely to display disagreement with the fairness, timeliness, and thoroughness of the resolution process while those whose complaint resulted in a letter of agreement or a memorandum of agreement/understanding with the registrant are mostly dissatisfied with the timeliness of the process.

Complainants are generally in agreement with CDSBC's communications practices. However, those whose cases are dismissed are more likely to disagree about being informed about developments pertaining to their case. In comparison, those whose cases resulted in a letter of agreement or memorandum are more likely to agree about being kept informed about their case.

Complainants are about as likely as unlikely to recommend to someone they know to proceed with a complaint to CDSBC should they have a concern about their dentist, dental therapist, or certified dental assistant.

Registrant Survey

Registrants who complete the survey tend to strongly agree in general with how the process is conducted in terms of fairness, courtesy, timeliness of the process, and thoroughness.

There is little difference when it comes to the type of outcome from the registrant perspective (dismissal, LOA or MOU) from an overall agreement perspective.

Registrants show agreement with the way CDSBC communicates with them during the investigation and resolution process.

Outcomes appear to match the expectations of registrants for the most part. As such, they are satisfied with the process that follows to investigate the complaint.

RESULTS

The results are organized by survey (complainant and registrant) and by question item where questions are presented in the same order as viewed by survey participants. The results of closed ended items are displayed in tables and graphics while free text comments are provided verbatim [deleted due to confidentiality reasons].

COMPLAINANT

Reason for filing a complaint

Complaints revolve around three themes. They are:

- Patient interaction;
- Perceived clinical competency; and
- Practice/billing.

Process

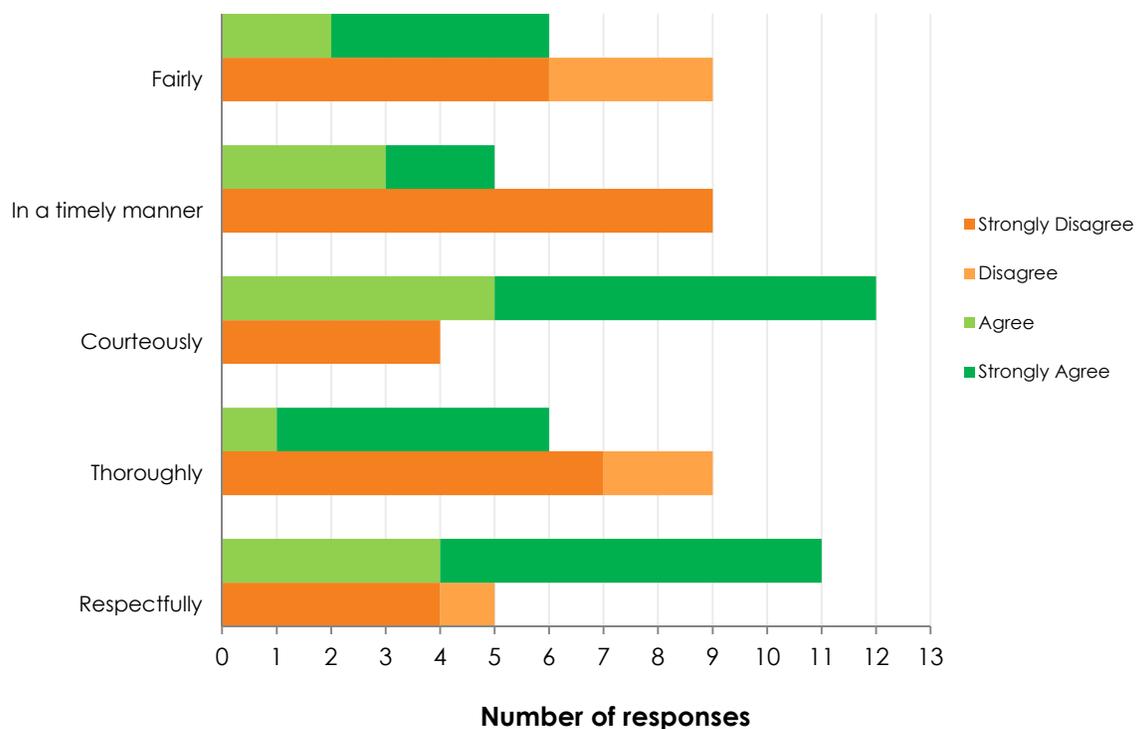

Complainants are equally split between those who agree and disagree with how the process is conducted in terms of fairness and thoroughness. Complainants are more likely to agree that their complaint was handled with courtesy and respect. Complainants are more likely to disagree that their complaint was handled in a timely manner

With regard to the way that CDSBC dealt with your complaint, please indicate your agreement or disagreement with the following statements.

Results show that those whose complaints are dismissed are more likely to display disagreement with the fairness, timeliness, and thoroughness of the resolution process while those whose complaint resulted in a letter of agreement or a memorandum of agreement/understanding with the registrant are mostly dissatisfied with the timeliness of the process.

Communication

Complainants are generally in agreement with CDSBC's communications practices. However, those whose cases are dismissed are more likely to disagree about being informed about developments pertaining to their case. In comparison, those whose cases resulted in a letter of agreement or memorandum are more likely to agree about being kept informed about their case.

Expectations and Satisfaction

One third of those who file a complaint reach the outcome they fully expected at the beginning of the process. However, in terms of satisfaction for the process following the investigation, the results are almost equally split between satisfied and dissatisfied.

Table 6. Thinking about the outcome of your complaint, was it what you expected?

	Number of responses
Yes	5
Somewhat	5
No	6

Table 7. How satisfied are you with the process followed to investigate your complaint?

	Number of responses
Very Satisfied	6
Somewhat Satisfied	2
Somewhat Dissatisfied	1
Very Dissatisfied	7

Figure 3 correlates the results for the previous two questions to assess the relationship, if any, between expectation of an outcome and satisfaction with the process.

The results appear to show a trend where the outcome of the complaint positively correlates with satisfaction with the process. When the outcome does not meet expectations, complainants are likely to be dissatisfied and when the outcome meets expectations, complainants indicate higher satisfaction.

The size of the diamond in the graph corresponds to the number of observations. The trend line indicates a linear positive relationship between the two components.

Recommendation

Complainants are about as likely as unlikely to recommend to someone they know to proceed with a complaint to CDSBC should they have a concern about their dentist, dental therapist, or certified dental assistant.

Table 8. If someone you knew had a concern about their dentist, dental therapist or certified dental assistant, would you recommend that s/he make a complaint about that practitioner to CDSBC?

REGISTRANT

Process

Registrants who complete the survey tend to strongly agree in general with how the process is conducted in terms of fairness, courtesy, and thoroughness. However, they are more likely to strongly disagree with the timeliness.

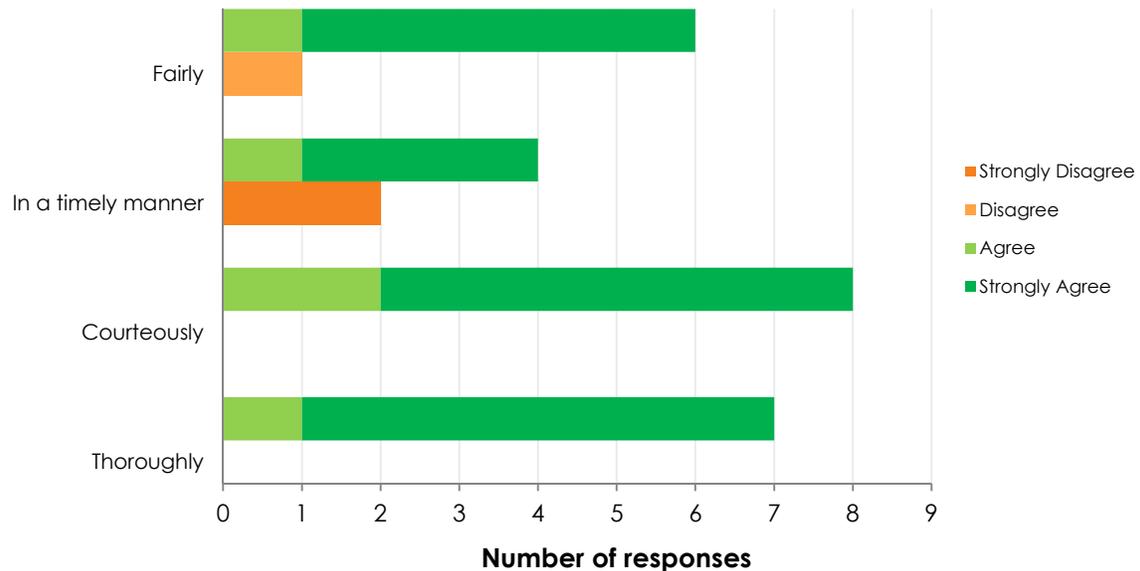

There is little difference according to the type of outcome from the registrant perspective (dismissal, LOA or MOU).

With regard to the way that CDSBC dealt with the complaint against you, please indicate your agreement or disagreement with the following statements.

Expectations and Satisfaction

Outcomes appear to match the expectations of registrants for the most part. As such, they are likely to be satisfied with the process that follows to investigate the complaint.

Table 13. How satisfied are you with the process followed to investigate your complaint?

	Number of responses
Very Satisfied	4
Somewhat Satisfied	2
Somewhat Dissatisfied	1
Very Dissatisfied	-

Figure 8 correlates the results for the previous two questions. Generally, the results appear to show that registrants are almost always satisfied so long as the outcome matches their expectations.

The size of the diamond in the graph corresponds to the number of observations. The trend line indicates a linear positive relationship between the two components.
